The Limits of Human Rights

Edited by

BARDO FASSBENDER
KNUT TRAISBACH

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
Contents

Notes on Contributors  xiii

Introduction: A Ride on the Human Rights Bus  1
  Bardo Fassbender and Knut Traisbach
    I. The Journey Begins  6
    II. After the Journey  10
    III. Before the Next Journey Begins  18

Prologue: Limits and their Varieties  23
  Henry J. Steiner
    I. Introduction  23
    II. Limits Distinguishing Human Rights from other Fields of International Law  24
    III. Legislatures and Courts: Economic and Social Rights and Political Democracy  29
    IV. Conclusion: Majestic Ideals, Limited Means  35

PART I. LIMITS OF IDEAS, LIMITS OF COMMUNITIES: PARADIGMS AND BIASES

1. Humanity and the Claim to Self-Evidence  39
  Lynn Hunt
    I. 1776 and 1789  39
    II. The Cultural Learning Implied by Self-Evident Universal Human Rights  43
    III. Limitations  48

  Bardo Fassbender
    I. The Origins of Self-Evidence  56
    II. 'All Men?' The Limits of Self-Evidence  63
    III. The Shattered Belief in the Self-Evidence of Human Rights  65
CONTENTS

3. Human Rights, Global Justice, and the Limits of Law
   Kate Nash
   I. Human Rights are Globalizing … 69
   II. … through States 71
   III. Two Sovereignties 74
   IV. The Citizen/Human Paradox 75
   V. Human Rights are Political 79

4. Human Rights beyond the Double Bind of Sovereignty: A Response to Kate Nash
   Mark Goodale 81

5. Emergencies and Human Rights: A Hobbesian Analysis
   David Dyzenhaus
   I. Legitimacy, Justification, and Human Rights 93
   II. Hobbes and the Basic Legitimation Demand 96
   III. Constitutionalism versus Reason of State 101

6. Reason, Faith, and Feelings: A Response to David Dyzenhaus
   Conor Gearty
   I. The Flight from Reason 109
   II. Land 112
   III. Community 114
   IV. Justification by Faith 116

PART II. LIMITS OF FUNCTIONS, LIMITS OF USES: ACTORS AND PRACTICES

7. Being a Realist about Human Rights
   Christian Reus-Smit
   I. Realist Scepticism 121
   II. Power and Agency Reconceived 124
   III. Orders, Rights, and Uncertainty 126
   IV. The New Scepticism 128
   V. To Cut a Long Story Short 130
   VI. Conclusion 133

8. Political Limits of International Human Rights: A Response (or a Rejoinder) to Christian Reus-Smit
   Başak Çali
   I. Realism about International Human Rights: A Simple Story Line 137
   II. Modern versus Contemporary International Human Rights: An Even More Complex Story on Political Limits 141
CONTENTS

PART III. LIMITS OF SCOPE, LIMITS OF RECOGNITION: THE CASE OF WOMEN'S RIGHTS

13. Between the Margins and the Mainstream: The Case of Women's Rights
   Hilary Charlesworth and Christine Chinkin
   I. Introduction
   II. The Human Rights Field
   III. Women, Peace, and Security
   IV. Conclusion
   205

14. Women's Rights are Human Rights: A Response to Hilary Charlesworth and Christine Chinkin from a Chinese Perspective
   Bai Guimei
   I. Introduction
   II. The Margin and Mainstream Discourse
   III. The Specialist and Generalist Approaches
   IV. The Family Values Debate
   V. Women in Armed Conflicts: The Security Council Resolution 1325
   VI. Article 5 of CEDAW and its Implementation
   VII. Concluding Remarks
   223

15. Women's Progress and Women's Human Rights
   Martha C. Nussbaum
   I. Women's Progress: What Does International Law Have to Do with It?
   II. Does Law Deter Crimes against Women?
   III. 'Already a Form of Improvement in Itself'
   IV. CEDAW as a Victory and Midpoint
   V. CEDAW, the CEDAW Committee, the Protocol, the Recommendations
   VI. The Limits of International Human Rights Law for Women's Human Rights
   VII. CEDAW's Modest Contributions
   231

16. The Limits of Law: A Response to Martha C. Nussbaum
   Fareda Banda
   I. On Seeing the Unseen: CEDAW and Intersectionality
   II. Reproductive Rights
   III. Beyond CEDAW
   IV. On the Challenge of Measuring Progress
   V. Conclusion
   267
PART IV. LIMITS OF PRAGMATISM, LIMITS OF COMPROMISE: THE CASE OF ARMED CONFLICT

17. The Limits of the Laws of War

Frédéric Mégret

I. Contingent Limits
   A. Lag behind the Reality of War
   B. Lack of Enforcement
   C. The Interstate Character of the Regulation of War

II. Inherent Limits
   A. The Limits of Legalism
   B. The Limits of Compromise
   C. The Limits of Pragmatism

III. Conclusion

18. The Banality of Humanity (as an Absolute): A Response to Frédéric Mégret

Knut Traibsah

I. The Limits of Law
II. Inherent Limits
III. Conclusions

19. The Limits of Human Rights in Times of Armed Conflict and Other Situations of Armed Violence

Andrew Clapham

I. Introduction
II. Human Rights in Armed Conflict
   A. A Limited Role for Human Rights in Targeting Decisions?
   B. A Limited Role for Human Rights in Challenging Internship and Detention?

III. Human Rights in Other Situations of Armed Violence
   A. Human Rights Law for Those Subjected to Targeted Killings by Drones
   B. Human Rights for Those under the Control of Armed Groups

20. The End of the War/Peace Limit on the Application of International Human Rights Law: A Response to Andrew Clapham

Yuval Shany

I. Substantive Expansion
II. Institutional Concerns
III. Fear of Backlash
PART V. LIMITS OF PROSPECTS, LIMITS OF MEANS: AN OUTLOOK

21. The Limits of Human Rights in a Moving World—Elements of a Dynamic Approach
   Mireille Delmas-Marty
   I. Introduction: Limits, Crossing Limits, and Refusing any Limit
      331
   II. The Limits of 'Reason of State' in Light of the Humanist and Universalist Ideal of Human Rights
      A. Human Rights or Raison d'État
      334
      B. Human Rights and Raison d'État: Towards a Common Standard
      336
   III. The 'Reason of Planet' and Risk Anticipation as Overcoming the Limits of Time
      A. 'Reason of Planet' as a Limit of Human Rights: The Precautionary Principle 338
      B. From Zero Risk to Acceptable Risk: Limiting Limits
      340
   IV. Does 'Techno-Scientific Reason' Lead to the Refusal of any Limit?
      A. The Ambivalence of New Technologies
      341
      B. 'The Contours of the 'Irreducible Human Core' 342
   V. Conclusion
      343

22. Where are the Limits of Human Rights? Four Schools, Four Complementary Visions:
   A Response to Mireille Delmas-Marty
   Marie-Bénédicte Dembour
   I. The Four-School Human Rights Model
      345
   II. The Limits of Human Rights According to the Four Schools: Inherent Defects, Limited Results, Specific Domain, Unfortunate 'Mishaps' 350
   III. The History of Human Rights as Viewed by the Different Schools
      352
   IV. Conclusion
      354

23. Strategizing for Human Rights: From Ideals to Practice
   Douglas A. Johnson and Kathryn Sikkink
   I. Context and Background
      357
   II. What Does It Mean to Strategize?
      359
   III. Is There a Downside to a More Strategic and Outcome Oriented Human Rights Practice?
IV. How to Strategize for a More Effective and Outcome Oriented Human Rights Practice 362
   A. Using Tools and Exercises for Strategic Training 365
   B. Using Historical and Social Science Research for Training 369
V. Conclusions 372

Micheline Ishay
   I. Mapping the Terrain of Human Rights 376
   II. Sustaining the Capacity for Change 376
   III. Mass Dispersal versus Mass Concentration 377
   IV. The Importance of a ‘Spectrum of Allies’ 377
   V. Human Rights Ideology and Strategic Thinking 378
   VI. Are Non-Violence Tactics more Likely to Lead to Successful Strategies? 378
   VII. When Can We Declare ‘Success’? 380
   VIII. Conclusion 381

Index 383
Notes on Contributors

Bai Guimei is Professor of International Law and Executive Director of the Research Centre for Human Rights and Humanitarian Law at Peking University Law School. Her main research interests are in theories of international law and international human rights law, particularly human rights protection mechanisms, women's rights and rights of the child. Her books in Chinese include International Law (3rd edn., Peking University Press 2015), Human Rights Law (2nd edn., Peking University Press 2015), and Self-Determination in International Law (China Overseas Chinese Press 1999). She was editor-in-chief of the Chinese Yearbook of International Law and has published numerous papers on international law and human rights law in major Chinese law journals.

Fareeda Banda is a Professor of Law at the University of London, School of Oriental and African Studies. Her areas of interest include the human rights of women, law and society in Africa, alternative dispute resolution and family law. She holds a DPhil from the University of Oxford and BL Hons, LLB from the University of Zimbabwe. She was a Hauser Global Visiting Professor at NYU in 2009 and 2014. Her publications include a book entitled Women, Law and Human Rights: An African Perspective (Hart Publishing 2005). She also authored reports on Laws that Discriminate against Women (Office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights 2008) and on Gender, Minorities and Indigenous Peoples (co-authored with Christine Chinkin, Minority Rights Group International 2004).

Hilary Charlesworth is a Melbourne Laureate Professor at Melbourne Law School. She is also a Distinguished Professor at the Australian National University. She received the American Society of International Law's award for creative legal scholarship for her book, co-authored with Christine Chinkin, The Boundaries of International Law: a Feminist Analysis (Manchester University Press 2000). She was also awarded, with Christine Chinkin, the American Society of International Law's Goler T. Butcher award for 'outstanding contributions to the development or effective realization of international human rights law'. Hilary has held both an Australian Research Council Federation Fellowship (2005–10) and an ARC Laureate Fellowship (2010–15). She is an associate member of the Institut de Droit International and served as judge ad hoc in the International Court of Justice in the Whaling in the Antarctic Case (2011–14).

Christine Mary Chinkin, FBA, CMG, is a Professorial Research Fellow and former Director of the Centre for Women, Peace and Security at the London School of Economics, a William W. Cook Global Law Professor at the University of Michigan and a member of the Bar of England and Wales and Matrix Chambers. She was previously Professor of International Law at the LSE. She is the author of many articles on international law and human rights law, in particular on the human rights of women. She is co-author of The Boundaries of International Law: a Feminist Analysis (with Hilary Charlesworth, Manchester University Press 2000), The Making of International Law (with Alan Boyle, Oxford University Press 2007) and of International Law and New Wars (with Mary Kaldor, Cambridge University Press 2017).

Andrew Clapham is Professor of International Law at the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, which he joined in 1997. He was the first Director of the Geneva Academy of International Humanitarian Law and Human Rights (2006–14). Andrew Clapham teaches international law, human rights law, and the laws of war. His current research focuses on war. He is an Associate Member of Matrix Chambers in London. In 2014, he was nominated by Switzerland as an Arbitrator under the UN Law of the Sea Convention. He has been a member of the UN Commission on Human Rights in South Sudan since October 2017. He has produced a 7th edition of Brierly's Law of Nations (Oxford University Press 2012). He is the co-editor with Paola Gaeta of the Oxford Handbook of International Law in Armed Conflict (Oxford University Press 2014) and co-editor with Paola Gaeta and Marco Sassòli of The 1949 Geneva Conventions: A Commentary (Oxford University Press 2015).

Marie-Bénédicte Dembour is Professor of Law and Anthropology at the Human Rights Centre, Ghent University. She studied law at the Free University of Brussels (ULB) and Social Anthropology at the University of Oxford. Her numerous publications include the seminal collection Culture and Rights: Anthropological Perspectives (co-edited with Jane K. Cowan and Richard A. Wilson, Cambridge University Press 2001), the monograph Who Believes in Human Rights? Reflections on the European Convention (Cambridge University Press 2006) and the award-winning When Humans Become Migrants: Study of the European Court of Human Rights with an Inter-American Counterpoint (Oxford University Press 2015). Her presentation of her human rights four-school model in Human Rights Quarterly 32 (2010) immediately became, and remains, one of this journal’s most downloaded articles. In 2019, she was awarded an Advanced Grant by the European Research Council (ERC) to lead a five-year research project entitled ‘DISSECT: Evidence in International Human Rights Adjudication’. An engaged and engaging scholar, she has been invited to teach and speak all over the world.

David Dyzenhaus is a Professor of Law and Philosophy at the University of Toronto, and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada. He holds the Alfred Abel Chair of Law and was appointed in 2015 to the rank of University Professor. In 2014–15, he was the Arthur Goodhart Visiting Professor in Legal Science in Cambridge. In 2016–17, he was a Fellow of the Wissenschaftskolleg zu Berlin. His books include Hard Cases in Wicked Legal Systems: Pathologies of Legality (2nd edn, Oxford University Press 2010), The Constitution of Law: Legality in a Time of Emergency (Cambridge University Press 2006), and Legality and Legitimacy: Carl Schmitt, Hans Kelsen, and Hermann Heller in Weimar (Oxford University Press 1997).

Bardo Fassbender is Professor of International Law, European Law, and Public Law at the University of St. Gallen in Switzerland. He studied law, history, and political science at the University of Bonn (Germany) and holds an LLM from Yale Law School and a Doctor iuris from the Humboldt University in Berlin, where he also completed his Habilitation and became Privatdozent. He was a Ford Foundation Senior Fellow in Public International Law at Yale University and a Jean Monnet Fellow at the European University Institute in Florence. Before joining the University of St. Gallen, he held the chair in international law and human rights law at the Bundeswehr University in Munich. His books include UN Security Council and the Right of Veto: A Constitutional Perspective (Kluwer Law International 1998), Der offene Bundesstaat [Foreign Relations Powers and the International Legal Personality of States Members of Federal States in Europe] (Mohr Siebeck 2007), and The United Nations Charter as the Constitution of the International Community (Martinus Nijhoff 2009).

Rosa Freedman is the inaugural Professor of Law, Conflict and Global Development at the University of Reading. She received her LLB, LLM and PhD from the University of London and is a member of Gray’s Inn. Freedman’s research focuses on the UN and human rights, and she works closely with the UN, State governments, and civil society. She has published extensively on UN human rights bodies and systems, and on UN peacekeeping and accountability for human rights abuses committed during such operations. Her published work includes two monographs, two co-edited collections, and articles in the American Journal of International Law, European Journal of International Law, Leiden Journal of International Law and Human Rights Quarterly, amongst others. Freedman is a member of the UN Secretary-General's Civil Society Advisory Board on prevention of sexual exploitation and abuse, is a Specialist Adviser on Safeguarding to the UK government International Development Committee, and sits on the UK FCO Women, Peace and Security Steering Group.

Conor Gearty is Professor of Human Rights Law at the London School of Economics and Political Science where he has recently been Director of its Institute of Public Affairs and, before that, Director of its Centre for the Study of Human Rights (2002–09). He has published widely on terrorism, civil liberties, and human rights. Conor is also a barrister and was a founder member of Matrix chambers from where he continues to practise. He has been a visiting professor at Boston University, the University of Richmond, the University of New South Wales, and the University of Sydney. Conor is a Fellow of the British Academy, a Member of the Royal Irish Academy, a Bencher of Middle Temple and has honorary doctorates from Sacred Heart University in the United States, University College Dublin in Ireland, and Brunel and Roehampton universities in the UK. His books include Can Human Rights Survive? (Cambridge University Press 2006), The Cambridge Companion to Human Rights Law (co-edited with Costas Douzinas, Cambridge University Press 2012), Liberty and Security (Polity Press 2013), The Meanings of Rights: The Philosophy and Social Theory of Human Rights (co-edited with Costas Douzinas, Cambridge University Press 2014), and On Fantasy Island: Britain, Europe and Human Rights (Oxford University Press 2016).

Ruth Houghton joined Newcastle Law School as a Lecturer in Law in September 2017. Previously, she was a Research Assistant for the European Research Council funded project ‘Neo-Federalism’, which was led by Professor Robert Schütze at Durham Law School and she worked at Durham Law School as a Graduate Teaching Assistant from 2013 to 2016. Ruth's research focuses on global constitutionalization and democracy. She has published on democracy and international organisations, as well as the United Nations Human Rights Council. She also works with Aoife O'Donoghue on feminist utopias and global constitutionalism.

Lynn Hunt is Distinguished Research Professor at the University of California, Los Angeles. Her abiding focus has been the French Revolution. She has also been concerned with historical method, human rights, and epistemology. Her books include History: Why It Matters (Polity Press 2018), The French Revolution and Napoleon: Crucible of the Modern World (co-authored with Jack R Censer, Bloomsbury Academic 2017), Writing History in the Global Era (WW Norton & Co 2014), and Inventing Human Rights: A History (WW Norton & Co 2007).

Michelle Ishay is Professor of International Studies and Human Rights at the Josef Korbel School of International Studies at the University of Denver; she is University of Denver Distinguished Scholar, and Director of the International Human Rights Program. She is author and editor of numerous books, including The Levant Express: The Arab Uprisings and the Future of the Middle East (Yale University Press 2019), The History of Human Rights: From Ancient Times to the Globalization Era (2nd edn, University of California Press 2008), The Human Rights Reader: Major Political Essays, Speeches and Documents from Ancient Times to the Present (2nd edn, Routledge 2007), and Internationalism and Its Betrayal (University of Minnesota Press 1995).

Douglas A. Johnson is a Lecturer in Public Policy and the former Director of the Carr Center for Human Rights Policy at the Harvard Kennedy School. Until 2012, he was Executive Director of the Minnesota-based Center for the Victims of Torture, a preeminent treatment facility in the US. He has been a committed advocate of human rights since the 1970s with ample experience in practical human rights campaigns, consultancy and organizational leadership. Another of Johnson’s major initiatives was the New Tactics in Human Rights Project to broaden tactical knowledge and improve strategic thinking amongst human rights NGOs. The NGO that emerged from this project—New Tactics—continues to be a source of innovation and inspiration to human rights defenders around the world.

Jan Klabbers is Professor of International Law at the University of Helsinki. He holds degrees in international law and political science as well as a doctorate in law from the University of Amsterdam, where he taught international law and EU law in the early 1990s before moving to Helsinki in 1996. His main publications include The Concept of Treaty in International Law (Kluwer 1996), An Introduction to International Organizations Law (3rd edn, Cambridge University Press 2015), International Law (2nd edn, Cambridge University Press 2017), Treaty Conflict and the European Union (Cambridge University Press 2008), The Challenge of Inter-legality (co-edited with Gianluigi Palombella, Cambridge University Press 2019) and, as co-author, The Constitutionalization of International Law (Oxford University Press 2009). His areas of interest include the law of international organisations and the law of treaties, and he has held visiting positions at, amongst others, New York University, the Graduate Institute in Geneva, and Sorbonne.

Frédéric Mégret is a full-Professor and Dawson Scholar at the Faculty of Law, McGill University. From 2006 to 2016, he held the Canada Research Chair on the Law of Human Rights and Legal Pluralism. Before coming to McGill, he was an Assistant Professor at the University of Toronto, a research associate at the European University Institute, and an attaché at the International Committee of the Red Cross. He is the editor, with Philip Alston, of the forthcoming second edition of The United Nations and Human Rights: A Critical Appraisal (Oxford University Press 2019) and the co-editor of the Oxford Handbook of International Criminal Law (Oxford University Press forthcoming). His research interests are in general international law, the laws of war, human rights and international criminal justice.

Kate Nash is Professor of Sociology at Goldsmiths, University of London, where she is Co-Director for the Centre for the Study of Global Media and Democracy, and Faculty Fellow at the Center for Cultural Sociology, Yale University. She has written and published widely on political sociology and on the sociology of human rights, including The Political Sociology of Human Rights (Cambridge University Press 2015), and The Cultural Politics of Human Rights: Comparing the US and UK (Cambridge University Press 2009). She is currently researching human rights films, and published 'Film that brings human rights to life' in Public Culture 30 (2018).

Aryeh Neier is president emeritus of the Open Society Foundations where he was president from 1993 to 2012. Before that, he served for 12 years as executive director of Human Rights Watch, of which he was a founder in 1978. He worked 15 years at the American Civil Liberties Union, including eight years as national executive director. He served as an adjunct professor of law at New York University for more than a dozen years, and has also taught at Georgetown University Law School and the University of Siena, Italy. Between 2012 and 2017, he served as Distinguished Visiting Professor at the Paris School of International Affairs of Sciences Po. Neier is a frequent contributor of op-ed articles and book reviews to leading international newspapers and periodicals, and he also wrote a column on human rights for The Nation for a dozen years. He is author of seven books, including his most recent, The International Human Rights Movement: A History (Princeton University Press 2012).

Martha C. Nussbaum is currently the Ernst Freund Distinguished Service Professor of Law and Ethics, appointed in the Department of Philosophy and the Law School of the University of Chicago. She is an Associate in the Classics Department, the Divinity School, and the Political Science Department and a Member of the Committee on Southern Asian Studies. Professor Nussbaum is internationally renowned for her work in Ancient Greek and Roman philosophy, feminist philosophy, political philosophy, and philosophy and the arts and is actively engaged in teaching and advising students in these subjects. She has received held visiting positions at, amongst place in Geneva, and Sorbonne.

On Scholar at the Faculty of Law, and the Canada Research Chair on

Before coming to McGill, he was onto, a research associate at the

the International Committee of the

the forthcoming second edition

Appraisal (Oxford University

International Criminal

research interests are in general and international criminal justice.

smiths, University of London, where

Global Media and Democracy, sociology, Yale University. She has synergy and on the sociology of human

Human Rights (Cambridge University

Rights: Comparing the US and UK

ently researching human rights

rights to life' In Public Culture 30

Society Foundations where he served for 12 years as executive as a founder in 1978. He worked including eight years as national or of law at New York University

Georgetown University Law

2012 and 2017, he served as

School of International Affairs of

-ed articles and book reviews

als, and he also wrote a column

is author of seven books,

an Rights Movement: A History

Freund Distinguished Service

Department of Philosophy and is an Associate in the Classics

ical Science Department and a

Studies. Professor Nussbaum is

Greek and Roman philosophy,

sophy and the arts and is ac-

these subjects. She has received

Jeremy Perelman is Associate Professor at the Sciences Po Law School in Paris, where he also serves as the founding Director of the Sciences Po Law School Clinic, a pluridisciplinary experiential learning and applied research public interest program. He is the co-editor of Stones of Hope: How African Activists Reclaim Human rights to Challenge Global Poverty (co-edited with Lucie E White, Stanford University Press 2010), a volume co-authored by African human rights advocates and social justice scholars. He was invited to teach as a Lecturer-in-Law at Columbia Law School, and as a Visiting Professor at the University of Connecticut School of Law and the Buchmann Faculty of Law at Tel Aviv University. Perelman holds Masters degrees from Stanford Law School and the Fletcher School at Tufts University, as well as a Doctorate (SJD) from Harvard Law School. He sits on the Editorial Committee of the European Journal of Human Rights.

Christian Reus-Smit is Professor of International Relations at the University of Queensland and a Fellow of the Academy of the Social Sciences in Australia. Among his many books, he is author of On Cultural Diversity: International Theory in a World of Difference (Cambridge University Press 2018), The Globalization of International Society (co-edited with Tim Dunne, Oxford University Press 2017), Individual Rights and the Making of the International System (Cambridge University Press 2013), American Power and World Order (Polity Press 2004), and The Moral Purpose of the State: Culture, Social Identity, and Institutional Rationality in International Relations (Princeton University Press 1999). His work has been awarded the Northedge Prize (1992), the BISA Prize (2002), and the Susan Strange Prize (2014). He is co-editor of the Cambridge Studies in International Relations book series, a General Editor of the Oxford Handbooks of International Relations, and a former editor of the leading journal International Theory.

Yuval Shany is the Hirsch Lauterpacht Chair in International Law and former Dean of the Law Faculty of the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. He also currently serves as the Vice Chair of the UN Human Rights Committee, the Academic Chair of the Minerva Center for Human Rights at the Hebrew University, and a Vice President for Research at the Israel Democracy Institute. Since 2016, Professor Shany also coordinates the work of the Cyber-Law Programme in the International Cyber-Security Research Center at the Hebrew University. Professor Shany received his LLB cum laude from the Hebrew University, LLM from New York University and PhD in international law from the University of London.

Kathryn Sikkink is the Ryan Family Professor of Human Rights Policy at the Harvard Kennedy School and the Carol K Pforzheimer Professor at the Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study. She works on international norms and institutions, transnational advocacy networks, the impact of human rights law and policies, and transitional justice. Her publications include Evidence for Hope: Making Human Rights Work in the 21st Century (Princeton University Press 2017), The Justice Cascade: How Human Rights Prosecutions are Changing World Politics (WW Norton & Co 2011), Activists Beyond Borders: Advocacy Networks in International Politics (co-authored with Margaret E Keck, Cornell University Press 1998), and The Persistent Power of Human Rights: From Commitment to Compliance (co-edited with Thomas Risse and Stephen C Ropp, Cambridge University Press 2013). She holds a PhD in political science from Columbia University. Sikkink has been a Fulbright Scholar in Argentina and a Guggenheim fellow.

Henry J. Steiner is Jeremiah Smith, Jr. Professor of Law, Emeritus at Harvard University where he also gained his B.A., LL.M. and LL.B. degrees. He served as law clerk to Justice John M. Harlan of the US Supreme Court and practiced law for several years before becoming a faculty member at Harvard Law School in 1962. His teaching and writing over several decades were primarily in the fields of international and transnational law. In 1984 Steiner founded the Harvard Law School Human Rights Program, which he directed until 2005 when he became professor emeritus. His lectures, courses, investigations, and consulting, mostly concerning international human rights, covered over 40 countries. Steiner’s legal-political writings were published as several books, articles in law and political journals, and chapters in edited books. His most recent publication of a book in 2016, Eyeing the World, displayed a selection of his photographs taken over half a century.

Knut Traisbach is Associate Professor (Adjunct) of International Law at the University of Barcelona and tutor for three international postgraduate programmes in International Affairs and Diplomacy organized by UNITAR and UOC. He also teaches human rights at ESADE Law School in Barcelona. He holds degrees from Humboldt University Berlin, the European University Institute and was a visiting researcher at Yale Law School. He has held positions as lecturer, programme director, researcher and course convener in the areas of international law, human rights and international relations at various higher education and research institutions in Berlin, Florence, Venice and Barcelona. His main research interests include meaningful interdisciplinary and critical approaches to international law, human rights and international relations theory.