Master in International Law Fall Term Lecture
You are cordially invited to the following lecture:

Democracies and International Law

Professor Tom Ginsburg, University of Chicago

Democracies and authoritarian regimes have different approaches to international law, grounded in their different forms of government. As the balance of power between democracies and non-democracies shifts, it will have consequences for international legal order. Human rights may face severe challenges in years ahead, but citizens of democratic countries may still benefit from international legal cooperation in other areas. Ranging across several continents, this volume surveys the state of democracy-enhancing international law and provides ideas for a way forward in the face of rising authoritarianism.

Tom Ginsburg is Leo Spitz Professor of International Law, University of Chicago Law School, and a Research Associate at the American Bar Foundation. He is the author of five books, including The Endurance of National Constitutions (2009, with Zachary Elkins and James Melton) and How to Save a Constitutional Democracy (2018, with Aziz Huq). He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Before entering law teaching, he served as a legal advisor at the Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal, The Hague, Netherlands, and he has consulted with numerous international development agencies and governments on legal and constitutional reform. He currently serves as senior advisor on Constitution Building to International IDEA.

Monday, December 13th, 12:15 – 13:45 pm CET, room 01-014

Please note that access to University premises is subject to restrictive measures due to the pandemic. Access is notably subject to properly documented vaccination, testing or recovery from Covid-19 (“3G”). Testing facilities are available at the university.