

Doctoral Assistant

University of St.Gallen

Swiss Institute for
Empirical Economic Research

The Swiss Institute for Empirical Economic Research of the University of St. Gallen is looking for an

Research and Teaching Assistant.

The position will start in February 2023, or later. The successful candidate will start her/his academic career in a challenging PhD programme (gpef.unisg.ch) and participate in the research and teaching activities of the econometrics and applied economics team of Professor Michael Lechner.

In addition to an excellent master degree in economics or a related field, strong quantitative and coding skills are important. Furthermore, the candidate's research interests should be in labour economics, sports economics, or in related fields, as well as in machine learning and microeconometrics.

For further information, see our webpages or contact us directly. If you are interested, please, send your application by email to Michael Lechner. Although there is no formal deadline, early applications are encouraged.